ERA - European Research Area*

Since 2000, the European Union has started the creation process of the European Research Area (ERA) with the aim of promoting cooperation and integration of research in Europe. This involved harmonizing research policies among member countries, removing barriers to the free movement of researchers, and integrating national research systems.

An example: Ministry of agriculture sovereignty and forestry (SCAR delegate) in ERA

As example, since 2004 Masaf, as partner, has participated in these initiatives to contribute in coordination among national research programmes and development programs among European countries. These tools enabled addressing common challenges through collaboration and coordination of research activities at a transnational level, ensuring more efficient use of resources and greater coherence in European research policies.

The European Forest Research and Innovation Ecosystem (EUFORE)

How can I get involved?

We aim to use a co-design approach to identify with stakeholders the sector's R&I priorities, and to work on building a financial framework for its implementation.

Strategic R&I agenda

One of the main outputs of EUFORE is a strategic R&I agenda for forestry and the forest-based sector (SRIA), along with accompanying implementation measures and stakeholder commitments.

What do European Partnerships aim to do?

European Partnerships are key implementation tools of Horizon Europe, the EU research and innovation programme (2021-2027) and contribute significantly to achieving the EU's political priorities.
